Commissioners hear feedback on Second Amendment sanctuary

BY BOB DEMAREE

More than two years after County Commissioners were approached with a petition asking for an ordinance establishing Jefferson County as a Second Amendment sanctuary, a public forum on the issue was held Thursday at the Jefferson County 4-H Fairgrounds Community Building.

As county residents arrived, they were presented a copy of a proposed resolution affirming the Commissioners' obligation to uphold the Constitution of the United States, particularly with respect to the Second Amendment. It also stated the Board of Commissioners supports the rights of Jefferson County residents created by the Second Amendment.

The resolution proposal was not well received by those for or against the issue.

For those supporting Second Amendment sanctuary there was disappointment that they were presented a resolution rather than the ordinance they had proposed when a petition was presented to the Commissioners on Feb. 6, 2020. For those opposing the issue, the request seems unnecessary since county official have already sworn an oath to protect the Constitution and they don't favor endorsing one amendment over the others or encouraging gun ownership.

By the end of the meeting, Commissioner Bobby Little told those who felt the resolution is not enough that the Commissioners could review the matter to "see if we can do something that has some teeth in it. I don't have a bit of a problem with that but there's no sense enacting an ordinance that's not enforceable. If we can come up something that's got teeth in it, I'd be all in favor of it."

Richard Carter, of Madison, has attended numerous Commissioners meetings over the last year encouraging passage of the ordinance. He said the resolution is not sufficient because it is not enforceable. "I have requested an ordinance" that will prevent Jefferson County taxpayers from funding the enforcement of federal and states laws in regards to firearms," Carter said. "It is up to the federal government to enforce their own laws and it is up to the state to enforce their own laws. I don't believe Jefferson County should spend the money or resources to do their job for them."

Scott Brewer, of Madison, noted the ordinance request in February 2020 included a supporting petition signed by 1,730 residents. "I came here because I thought we were going to talk about the ordinance that was presented to the Commissioners to make us a second amendment sanctuary. This has nothing to do with that," Brewer said.

Brewer also noted the Commissioners had said then that they needed time to discuss the ordinance with their attorney but there has been no report on that discussion since. "Do you know what the lawyer said about that?" he asked.

Richard Carter, an outspoken proponent for adopting an ordinance for establishing Jefferson County as a Second Amendment sanctuary county, spoke at Thursday's public forum.

Commissioner David Bramer noted the county attorney told them "we couldn't pass it" because the ordinance, as written, would "overrule every other ordinance in the county and is not something that he recommended."

Commissioner Ron Lee said when the ordinance was presented to them in 2020 he felt time was needed for consideration and revision because the initial version was "not want we want for Jefferson County." Then the COVID-19 pandemic broke out and that slowed the Commissioners from moving forward on the ordinance. "We're just now coming back together from a year-and-a-half ago, and I feel we're trying to work on this and that's what we're trying to do is put something together. We're trying to do it logical and for the best interest of the county," Lee said.

Lee also noted that any ordinance passed by the current Commissioners could be reversed by three new County Commissioners should the makeup of the board change. "We want to put one together that has some longevity to it, and that works for my grandkids," Lee said. "I'm not going to be here forever, and I don't want to pass something that detours the economic growth" in the county because some of what was in the proposed ordinance might deter companies from wanting to do business in Jefferson County.

There were also those who spoke against enacting a Second Amendment sanctuary ordinance.

Ruth Turner, a retired professor of political science at Hanover College for 41 years, has been a Jefferson County resident since 1979. She noted the Second Amendment's right to possess firearms deserves no more protection than other Constitutional amendments.

"When we live in a pluralistic society, we have competing rights," she said. "And what we have to do is balance those rights. Rather than think of the second amendment giving rights that trump all other rights, I think we should think of the standard argument of first amendment rights where we all know we have a right to freedom of speech, but we cannot cry 'fire' in a crowded community building or a theater," Turner said. "So, the premise in which we must protect second amendment rights over all other rights is very problematical" and "opens the door then that you will need a resolution that you support freedom of press, freedom of religion, freedom of trial by jury" and so on.

Jane Stormer, a Hanover resident since 2007, said she learned to shoot a gun as a child, "but I am not pro-gun. I am pro people living." Stormer said she has "looked into the eyes of a survivor of a school shooting after they have heard a gunshot, and seen the PTSD (post-traumatic stress disorder) that happens in children."

Stormer also said she "has traveled the world where people do not typically own guns and never felt safer" but residents of those countries do not view the United States similarly. "They ask, 'Will I get shot?' And I did not have a good answer for them."

Sandy Palmer, of Madison, has resided in Jefferson County since 2005 and called the resolution "a waste of your energy and our time" because he Commissioners, as sworn elected officials, have already pledged to uphold the Constitution of the United States.

Daniel Hellmann, of Madison, said if a second amendment sanctuary ordinance is to be created it should be put on the "ballot for all the voters of Jefferson County to say 'this is what we want,' not three people" on the board of Commissioners. "I am talking everybody in Jefferson County. If you're going to have a sanctuary, let's let everybody have input into this."

Speaking in support of the ordinance, county resident Dave Johnson said it's not the guns that hurt people so gun ownership is not the problem. "No gun has ever killed anybody" he said noting it takes "somebody to pull the trigger" and that's often due to a person with mental health issues that that's where financial resources need to go.

"You're never going to solve this problem by taking away the guns," he said adding guns "allow us to protect ourselves and our families" ... "Guns start crime, like flies cause garbage. It's not the guns."

Bramer noted that even though the Commissioners presented a resolution on Thursday night "it wasn't our intent to pass it tonight. We wanted people to read it tonight, so it is a first draft. We wanted to be able to talk" about the draft.

Bramer said once a second draft is completed it will be posted on the Jefferson County government website.

Bramer also said the Commissioners knew there will be opinions for and against any action on the second amendment sanctuary issue and they want to hear them all. "We want to work with everyone," he said. "That's why we thought a meeting would be a good way to get it started again" after being delayed by COVID-19. Bramer said the draft presented was "our initial response. Now, we'll see what we can come up with."

BY BOB DEMAREE

Michael Gasaway has resigned as principal of Madison Consolidated High School to take the same position at Greenwood High School while Madison Consolidated Schools has named Tara McKay the district's director of programs and Kirstyn Hardwick principal at Anderson Elementary.

Michael Gasaway

Tara McKay

Kirstyn Hardwick

Gasaway, MCHS principal since July 1, 2017, said in a Facebook post, "What a fast, wonderful and extremely satisfying five years serving MCS. Too many great memories with some fantastic people. Too many to list. I wish all the best for the students, teachers, staff, families and the community of Madison."

The position has been posted as a priority to hire for the district with a goal of finding a candidate within the next few weeks. Assistant Principal Ronnie Lawhead will serve as interim and oversee daily operations in the building until the position is filled.

Gasaway had served as principal at Fivay High School in Hudson, Florida, for two years prior to coming to MCHS. Before that he worked seven years as assistant principal and athletic director at Huntington North High School in Indiana.

McKay was named director of programs after serving as Anderson Elementary principal since March 2020. Prior to that, McKay served two years as assistant director of Special Services for the district.

"My true passion as an educator has always been supporting students in their educational journey," said McKay. As director of programs, she will further develop a staff team to continue to collaborate with principals, teachers and parents in all buildings identifying needs on an individual basis around Special Education services, screenings, academic interventions and behavioral interventions.

She began her career at Madison schools as an elementary teacher in 2001. During her time in the classroom, she taught preschool, kindergarten, second and third grades and assisted with the integration of technology into the classroom and helped to develop digital curriculum. "As a graduate of Madison Consolidated High School, I am extremely passionate about the education that we provide to students in this district," she said. "I have been blessed to work in various capacities within the district over the past 20 years, and I look forward to bringing my vast experience to my new role."

"We are very excited about this move with Tara," said Madison Superintendent Teresa Brown. "While she did an excellent job as a building administrator, she now brings that expanded experience to this role and is committed to comprehensive support of our SPED staff, students, and families."

Hardwick, the new Anderson Elementary principal, has served as Anderson assistant principal since 2020.

"I am so excited to be able to serve Anderson Elementary in a new capacity as principal," said Hardwick. "Mrs. McKay and I have worked closely the last two years and I am ready to come together with staff and continue the great work we started."

Prior to coming to Anderson Elementary, Hardwick was a professional development project manager with Solution Tree, a company specializing in educational publishing, events and professional development. She was an elementary curriculum instructional coach with the Bartholomew Consolidated School Corporation, as well as a fifth grade teacher at Waldron Elementary School and sixth grade teacher at Clifty Creek Elementary.

TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Aug. 1, 1936, the Olympics opened in Berlin with a ceremony presided over by Adolf Hitler.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1876, Colorado was admitted as the 38th state.

In 1907, the U.S. Army Signal Corps established an aeronautical division, the forerunner of the U.S. Air Force.

In 1944, an uprising broke out in Warsaw, Poland, against Nazi occupation; the revolt lasted two months before collapsing.

In 1957, the United States and Canada announced they had agreed to create the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD).

In 1966, Charles Joseph Whitman, 25, went on an armed rampage at the University of Texas in Austin that killed 14 people, most of whom were shot by Whitman while he was perched in the clock tower of the main campus building. (Whitman, who had also slain his wife and mother hours earlier, was finally gunned down by police.)

In 1975, a 35-nation summit in Finland concluded with the signing of a declaration known as the Helsinki Accords dealing with European security, human rights and East-West contacts.

In 1994, Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley confirmed they'd been secretly married 11 weeks earlier. (Presley filed for divorce from Jackson in January 1996, citing irreconcilable differences.)

In 2001, Pro Bowl tackle Korey Stringer, 27, died of heat stroke, a day after collapsing at the Minnesota Vikings' training camp on the hottest day of the year.

In 2007, the eight-lane Interstate 35W bridge, a major Minneapolis artery, collapsed into the Mississippi River during evening rush hour, killing 13 people.

In 2011, the U.S. House of Representatives passed, 269-161, emergency legislation to avert the nation's first-ever financial default; Arizona Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords returned to the House for the first time since being shot in Jan. 2011 to cast a "yes" vote.

In 2013, defying the United States, Russia granted Edward Snowden temporary asylum, allowing the National Security Agency leaker to slip out of the Moscow airport where he had been holed up for weeks.

In 2014, a medical examiner ruled that a New York City police officer's chokehold caused the death of Eric Garner, whose videotaped arrest and final pleas of "I can't breathe!" had sparked outrage.

Ten years ago: President Barack Obama made his rival's personal millions a front-and-center issue in the race for the White House, telling a swing-state audience in Ohio that Mitt Romney "is asking you to pay more so that people like him can get a big tax cut." Four teams from China, South Korea and Indonesia were kicked out of the women's badminton doubles at the London Olympics for trying to lose on purpose in order to earn an easier matchup in the knockout round.

Five years ago: By a vote of 92-5, the Senate confirmed President Donald Trump's nomination of Christopher Wray as FBI director. He replaced James Comey, who was fired by Trump amid the investigation into Russian meddling in the 2016 presidential campaign.

One year ago: After much delay, senators unveiled a $1 trillion bipartisan infrastructure bill. American swimmer Caeleb Dressel captured his fourth and fifth gold medals of the Tokyo Olympics, while Australia's Emma McKeon won two more golds and became the first female swimmer – and second woman in any sport – to claim seven medals at one Olympics. Texas-born Italian sprinter Marcell Jacobs won gold in the 100 meters, Italy's first medal in the event. Belarusian track sprinter Krystsina Tsimanouskaya, who faced punishment at home after criticizing the way the track team was managed, said her Olympic team officials tried to remove her from Japan in a dispute that led to a standoff at Haneda Airport in Tokyo. (She would later find refuge in Poland.) Rapper DaBaby was cut from Lollapalooza's closing lineup following crude and homophobic remarks he had made at a Miami-area music festival.

NASCAR, IndyCar speed into shared Indy weekend

JENNA FRYER

Denny Hamlin ate dinner next to the winning Pocono Raceway trophy, opened the celebratory champagne awarded to the victor and enjoyed a glass with his meal.

It was an advertisement: "Live on EBay. 1 tainted trophy and 1 used bottle of champagne," he posted on social media.

The first Cup winner to be disqualified since April 17, 1960, hasn't shied away from poking fun at the predicament Joe Gibbs Racing found itself in when the Toyotas of Hamlin and runner-up Kyle Busch failed postrace inspection Sunday at Pocono. Hamlin even shoved a clear piece of tape into the mouth of the eagle on the Pocono trophy to represent the illegal tape NASCAR says it found on the two JGR cars after the race.

He estimated the clear tape — because it stripped him of the victory and all the spoils that come with a win — was "worth about 300k. (Not to be included in sale)."

Chase Elliott is unlikely to bid on any of the items. He was eventually declared the winner of Sunday's race at Pocono, where he finished third and never led a lap but inherited the win when JGR failed inspection.

NASCAR's most popular driver has no interest in earning trophies that way.

"I don't think any driver wants to win that way — I certainly don't," Elliott said.

And that's how NASCAR heads into this shared weekend with IndyCar on the road course at Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Kurt Busch missed Sunday's race at Pocono with concussion-like symptoms from a Saturday crash, and on the IndyCar side, two-time series champion Josef Newgarden won't know if he can race until a Thursday evaluation following his own health scare.

Newgarden collapsed and hit his head roughly 90 minutes after he'd been cleared by IndyCar's medical staff following a hard crash while leading at Iowa Speedway. Although there's been no mention of a possible concussion by either IndyCar or Team Penske for Newgarden, the team has put Santino Ferrucci on standby in case Newgarden isn't cleared to race Saturday.

Denny Hamlin, driver of the No. 11 FedEx Office Toyota, celebrates in victory lane after winning the NASCAR Cup Series M&M's Fan Appreciation 400 at Pocono Raceway in Long Pond, Penn., on Sunday. Hamlin was disqualified shortly thereafter.

IndyCar is coming off an action-packed weekend at Iowa Speedway, where new sponsor Hy-Vee spent $10 million to throw an extravaganza that included a pair of races and concerts by Tim McGraw, Florida Georgia Line and Gwen Stefani, whose 50-minute prerace set on Sunday drew drivers and teams to the stage and upstaged her headliner husband, Blake Shelton.

It was an electric IndyCar weekend that rivaled its marquee events at Indianapolis, St. Petersburg, Long Beach and Toronto, and raised the bar for what promoters could be doing to promote a series that trails NASCAR in popularity.

"Everybody that isn't Hy-Vee and Penske Entertainment, the people who brought Iowa together this way, can learn from this weekend because every single IndyCar weekend has to be like this," said Pato O'Ward, who finished second on Saturday and won Sunday following Newgarden's crash.

"They've shown that if you put the effort in to a great event, people will show up. This place was packed."

The reward was a championship chase that has tightened to six drivers separated by 44 points with five races remaining. Newgarden was scored as the points leader when he was dominating Sunday's race, but he dropped to a tie for third with Scott Dixon following his crash.

Now his title chances hinge on being cleared to race Saturday: Should Newgarden be benched, it would most certainly cost him his shot at a third IndyCar title.

And that's where Roger Penske and his committee missed taking a big swing at drumming up major interest in this weekend's IMS doubleheader. Penske owns the track and the doubleheader weekend is his to promote, except now his star driver is questionable. If Newgarden can't race, then its a throwaway for the No. 2 and it doesn't really matter where the driver finishes.

Ferrucci has been a super-sub of late, was 10th in the Indy 500 and is a fine choice for a standby driver. But with NASCAR also scheduled to be in town, there seems to be a deep pool of candidates that Penske could have chosen from.

Among them? Reigning NASCAR champion Kyle Larson raised his hand as interested in standing by for Newgarden and fans went wild over the idea of Larson in an Indy car. Sage Karam is scheduled to drive the Xfinity Series race but also said he's interested in double duty. IndyCar veteran Tony Kanaan was going to be at the track anyway, and the list goes on and on.

Juan Pablo Montoya just raced the road course in May in an Indy car and is a former Penske driver, and then there's Cup rookie Austin Cindric, who once thought he'd be an IndyCar driver but instead found his way to NASCAR. His father, Tim Cindric, is president of Team Penske and the strategist on Newgarden's car. What a weekend it could have been for the Cindrics.

Of course, all these hypotheticals could be for naught and Newgarden could be cleared to race Saturday. Either way, both NASCAR and IndyCar head to IMS with a slew of juicy storylines and the potential for an action-packed weekend on the hallowed grounds.

QB Ryan challenges Colts to keep up with quick-paced tempo

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WESTFIELD, Ind. — Matt Ryan spent 14 seasons winning over coaches, teammates and fans with his sensational play in Atlanta.

Matt Ryan

Now, he's trying to do it all over again — in Indianapolis.

For the first time since his rookie season, Ryan is learning a new playbook at a new training camp facility and developing a new routine. After just two days of workouts, the Colts couldn't be more impressed with the results.

"When you've got a guy with Matt's experience you can kind of say 'Hey, here's what we want but trust your instincts. If you see it, call it, don't flinch, do what you've done your whole career,' " Colts coach Frank Reich said after practice Thursday. "It's a mentality, it's a confidence, it's 'we've got to get up and play'. We're dictating the tempo from the huddle to the call and we're going."

This is what Reich and general manager Chris Ballard anticipated when they traded a third-round pick to Atlanta for the 37-year-old quarterback in March.

The Falcons were rebuilding, making the league's 2016 MVP and the best quarterback in franchise history suddenly available.

Indianapolis, meanwhile, needed someone who could add stability and leadership after using five opening day starters in five seasons and then missing last season's playoffs by losing its final two games.

Ryan came with a strong resume that included four Pro Bowl selections, one Super Bowl appearance and top-10 rankings on the NFL's career list for yards passing (59,735) and touchdown passes (367).

But the game tape also convinced Reich and Ballard that Ryan was still in command, still playing at an elite level and still able to make a difference on a young team.

Naturally, he hasn't disappointed.

"Whenever he breaks a huddle, he's 'hurry up, get to the line, get to the line,' " left tackle Matt Pryor said. "To have a dominant offense, you want the offense getting to the line quick cause then the defenses are like, 'We've got to hurry up,' and maybe that'll throw them off a little bit."

The first part of Ryan's grand plan began in April when he won over teammates and coaches by quickly mastering the offense, adding confidence and humility to the locker room and building relationships.

Ryan's progression continued through the summer as he worked with other Colts players outside from the team complex. Through it all, he convinced everyone, he was the right man for the job.

"Whatever he's about to say, everyone's tuned in because you know it's going to be nothing but beneficial," defending NFL rushing champ Jonathan Taylor said in the spring. "So just having that leadership, that kind of person in the building. Being able to hear and learn from him and see how detailed he is, it makes you want to be that detailed."

It's been more of the same since the Colts reported to Westfield, Indiana, a northwestern suburb of Indy on Tuesday.

One key difference: Indy got in all of its scheduled offseason work for the first time in three years.

Another is Ryan's ability to adapt. Indy opened camp with four players, including three-time Pro Bowl linebacker Shaquille Leonard, on the physically unable to perform list following back surgery in June. Leonard told reporters Tuesday he wanted to be referred to by his middle name instead of his first name, Darius.

Since then, three players have been activated — though receiver Michael Strachan remains out. Indy also signed two receivers Tuesday.

But it hasn't slowed down Ryan.

While one fan tried to catch his attention by shouting "Iceman" on Thursday, Pryor and defensive end Yannick Ngakoue challenged themselves to keep up with Ryan.

"Can't waste any time and that's one of the messages for young guys is you can't wait," Ryan said. "That's one of the keys in training camp. One of the most difficult things is to stay mentally sharp day in and day out when it's the same thing over and over and over. The good teams, the teams that develop this time of the year are the ones that can do that."

So Ryan intends to keep the offense on its toes, the defense on its heels and fans entertained with the kind of speedy pace Peyton Manning would embrace.

"We had the same number of plays we've had in the past, but we actually finished 10 minutes earlier both days. That's because the quarterback is pushing the tempo," Reich said. "It's unbelievable. We've never practiced that fast."

Castillo strikes out 8 in possible Reds finale

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Luis Castillo pitched seven effective innings in likely his final start with Cincinnati, leading the Reds to a 5-3 victory over the Miami Marlins on Wednesday night.

Castillo is one of the top players on the market ahead of Tuesday's trade deadline. The Reds are last in the NL Central, and the talented right-hander could help push a contender over the top.

Castillo (4-4) allowed three runs — including JJ Bleday's first big league homer — and six hits. He also struck out eight and walked one in his first start since July 14.

Castillo gave Cincinnati fans one last moment after Jesús Sánchez's RBI double for Miami left runners on second and third with none out in the seventh.

He responded with three straight strikeouts — all swinging. He walked off the mound to a standing ovation, took off his cap, and gestured to the crowd.

"Everything turned out as well as it could have," Castillo said through a translator. "That last inning was marvelous, two runners on and I was able to punch out the last three. Really it is up to the people upstairs now what happens."

Cincinnati grabbed control with four runs in the first. Kyle Farmer hit a two-run double and scored on Donovan Solano's double. Matt Reynolds tacked on an RBI single. Fortes led off the third with his fourth homer, and Bleday opened the fourth with a drive to right in his fifth big league game.

The 29-year-old Castillo signed a one-year, $7.35 million contract in March, avoiding arbitration. He missed all of spring training due to a right shoulder strain and didn't make his season debut until May 9. But he is rolling now, improving to 2-0 with a 1.58 ERA in his last five starts.

Busch to miss Indy with concussion-like symptoms

BY JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kurt Busch will miss Sunday's NASCAR race at Indianapolis Motor Speedway with concussion-like symptoms and be replaced again by Ty Gibbs in the Toyota for 23XI Racing.

The team said Wednesday that Busch has not been cleared to race for a second consecutive week. He crashed in qualifying last Saturday at Pocono Raceway and missed the next day's race.

"Kurt's health is of the utmost importance to the team, and we wish him all the best as he prepares for his return," said the team owned by Denny Hamlin and Michael Jordan.

Gibbs, the 19-year-old grandson of NFL and NASCAR Hall of Famer Joe Gibbs, made his Cup debut last weekend as Busch's replacement in the No. 45. He finished 16th.

"I'm happy to help out 23XI Racing this week at Indianapolis, but again our thoughts are with Kurt and getting him healthy," Ty Gibbs posted on social media. "He's a good guy, and we all want him back soon.

"I think the goals are the same as last week — just to complete the race and learn all we can. I want to thank Denny and MJ for the opportunity."

Gibbs will also compete Saturday in the Xfinity Series race.

Busch, who turns 44 next week, is in his 22nd full season of Cup racing. He thanked Gibbs for again filling his seat and said, "I remain dedicated to focusing on my recovery and getting back on the track and will continue to work closely with NASCAR's medical team and my own team of doctors."

Kurt Busch, driver of the No. 45 McDonald's Toyota, speaks with a crew member during qualifying for the NASCAR Cup Series M&M's Fan Appreciation 400 at Pocono Raceway in Long Pond, Penn., on Saturday.

23XI said Busch has received a medical waiver from NASCAR and remains eligible for the playoffs. Busch earned his playoff spot with a victory at Kansas in May.

NASCAR shares Indianapolis Motor Speedway this weekend with IndyCar, and Team Penske driver Josef Newgarden is awaiting a Thursday evaluation to determine if he can race. The two-time IndyCar champion collapsed Sunday and hit his head about 90 minutes after he was cleared from the medical center at Iowa Speedway following a hard crash while leading the race.

Scott McLaughlin, a close friend of Newgarden's and his Penske teammate, said he's only communicated with Newgarden's wife and father.

"Ultimately, when I found out what happened, it was a bit of a shock to the system for me and for everyone. But the main thing is just wanted him to be OK," McLaughlin said Wednesday. "It sounds like he's typical Josef fighting and doing his thing. I hope he just gets better soon and I'm sure we'll see him Thursday."

Santino Ferrucci is on standby in case Newgarden is not cleared to race. A pool of drivers, including reigning NASCAR champion Kyle Larson, indicated they'd like to fill-in for Newgarden if he can't race.

Austin Cindric, the Cup rookie and son of Team Penske president Tim Cindric, said he never asked his father for a shot in the Indy car. Tim Cindric is also Newgarden's strategist.

"As far as wanting to start in IndyCar, absolutely. The drivers I've idolized and looked up to my entire life are mostly IndyCar drivers. I come from that world and I'd love to get a taste of that some day," Cindric said Wednesday. "I'm not going to set a timeline or prediction of that, but I can tell you right now is probably not that time.

"I think focusing on my Cup career is the highest of importance, but I've been a guy that's always loved driving different things and not just being specialized in a certain field.

"I'd certainly love to do that one day and maybe the opportunity will come."

Old-guy quarterbacks could give Big Ten different look

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — The story of Sean Clifford and Tanner Morgan's began on a seventh-grade football field.

Their final scheduled matchup is Oct. 22 when Minnesota visits Penn State.

In between, the two quarterbacks followed one another's journeys through high school and the recruiting process, the natural ups and downs of college football and the COVID-19 pandemic. Now, they're embarking on one final destination together — a sixth and final college season.

"To think that both of us, with our old asses, are still playing on the biggest stages, it's very cool because that friendship is so deep," Clifford said Wednesday at the Big Ten media day. "We're still playing at the highest level and now getting to play Tanner this year, it's going to be a lot of fun."

Both enter the fall with plenty of unfulfilled goals.

Clifford begins his fourth season as Penn State's starter at age 24, as the new face of a national movement to help college football players and as the CEO of his own NIL company.

But he hasn't led the Nittany Lions to the East Division crown or played in the College Football Playoff — yet.

Morgan, slightly younger at age 23, has two nine-win seasons on his resume and took the Golden Gophers to three of the school's 22 bowl bids.

Morgan and three other super seniors — the self-described Encore Four — are chasing their first West Division crown and coach P.J. Fleck believes Morgan's experience can help his team finally pull it off.

"Tanner Morgan has been around the league, it seems like forever," Fleck said. "He's got his bachelor's degree, his master's degree, and now he's kind of a non-major student, just taking classes and going to lead our football team. He got married here a few weeks ago."

Morgan's not alone in the marriage department — at Minnesota or around the league.

But in a sport that has changed dramatically since Clifford and Morgan first arrived on campus as redshirt freshmen in 2017, the league's quarterback carrousel appears remarkably stable.

Purdue quarterback Aidan O'Connell joins the six-year club and he's getting married Saturday.

Graham Mertz, Taulia Tagovailoa and Payton Thorne return as starters at Wisconsin, Maryland and Michigan State.

Most eyes will be trained on Ohio State's incumbent, C.J. Stroud, a Heisman Trophy finalist who threw for 4,435 yards and 44 touchdown passes and could end the league's Heisman drought in 2022.

8 Important Facts About Retirement Planning

Layin it on the line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/ Wealth Management

Retirement can mean many different things to many people. For some, it will be a time to travel and spend time with family. For others, it will be a time to start a new business or begin a charitable endeavor. Regardless of what approach you intend to take, here are nine things about retirement that might surprise you.

1. No Age Restriction on When You Can Retire

In the past, most people retired around age 65. However, retiring later in life has become more prevalent in recent years. In fact, there's no age restriction on when you can retire. As long as you have the financial means to do so, you can retire at any age.

2. Retirement Income Can Be Taxable

Depending on your retirement account type, you might have to pay taxes on your retirement income. If you have a traditional IRA, you may owe taxes on the money you withdraw in retirement based on your overall income. If you have a Roth IRA, you won't owe any taxes on the money you withdraw.

3. You Might Need to Adjust Your Withdrawal Rate

The 65-and-older population is the fastest-growing age group in the United States and has grown by 34.2% over the past decade. The percentage of money you can safely withdraw from your retirement account each year depends on several factors, including the size of your nest egg and how long you expect to live. However, as a general rule of thumb, you should withdraw no more than 4% of your nest egg each year.

4. Consider Delaying Your Social Security

You'll receive a reduced benefit if you start collecting Social Security benefits at age 62. For example, suppose your full retirement age is 67, and you start collecting benefits at 62. In that case, you'll receive only 70% of your monthly benefit. If you wait until age 70 to start collecting, you'll receive 132% of your monthly benefit. The average Social Security retirement benefit is $1,536 per month or about $19,000 per year. The maximum possible Social Security benefit for someone retiring at full retirement age in 2020 is $3,345 per month or $39,000 annually.

5. Don't Forget The Cost Of Nursing Homes.

Most health insurance plans don't cover the cost of long-term care, such as the cost of a nursing home. Consider purchasing a long-term care insurance policy or set aside funds to cover any future care costs. The average cost of nursing home care in America is expected to be more than $8,000 a month by 2023. However, actual costs will vary from state to state.

6. You Might Have to Downsize Your Home

If you plan on downsizing your home in retirement, you might be surprised to learn that the cost of living in some areas is quite high. For example, the cost of living in Manhattan is more than double the national average. As a result, you might have to downsize your home to a smaller apartment or condo.

7. Consider Working in Retirement

If you don't have enough saved for retirement, you might need to work during retirement. In fact, about 1 in 4 Americans over the age of 65 are still working. Working during retirement can help supplement your income and allow you to stay active.

8. You Might Need to Save More Than You Think

The amount of money you need to save for retirement depends on a number of factors, including your lifestyle and how long you expect to live. However, as a general rule of thumb, you should aim to have at least 10 times your annual income saved by retirement. For example, earning $50,000 a year, you should aim to save at least $500,000 by retirement.

Bonus Fact About Retirement: Don't Forget About Inflation

Inflation will have a significant impact on your retirement savings. For example, if inflation is 3%, the cost of living will be 33% higher after 10 years. As a result, you'll need to save more money for retirement than you think.

The future points to one conclusion: The 65-and-older age group is expected to become larger and more influential. Have you made arrangements for health care expenses? Are you comfortable with your decisions? Have you considered market volatility? Inflation?

Research shows that the average American has $95,776 saved for retirement, and 1 in 3 Americans have no retirement savings. Suppose you don't have enough saved for retirement. In that case, you should consider working during retirement, downsizing your home, or delaying your Social Security benefits. You should also be aware of the potential costs of nursing care and long-term care. Finally, remember that you might need to adjust your withdrawal rate as you get older. With careful planning, you can ensure a comfortable retirement.

A retirement strategy is not a "set it and forget it" proposition. You should review your strategy annually to ensure you are on track to reach your goals. How have you prepared for retirement? Are you on track to reach your goals? Have you even defined your goals? Take a few minutes and conduct personal evaluation.

Maid of Honor doesn't say yes to the dress

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: Last year, I asked "Hannah" to be my maid of honor for my destination wedding.

She exuberantly accepted and we both started planning. The wedding was only about five months away, so things needed to be figured out quickly.

I gave Hannah no less than three different options of times to go dress shopping.

She was always "unable to make it."

She is single, with a car, and has no real reason to be unavailable.

After a couple months of this, I let Hannah know that I was really sorry, but another friend would be stepping in as maid of honor. I said I still very much wanted her as a bridesmaid.

She told me I was a terrible person, how dare I do this to her when she "spent so much time and effort on this already," that I obviously didn't care about our friendship, and she didn't want anything more to do with me!

I have tried to repair this friendship. It still bothers me that maybe I WAS in the wrong. I also want to help restore our daughters' friendship.

Was I so wrong in picking a different maid of honor? Or should I have just sucked it up and dealt with Hannah's problematic schedule?

Should I continue to try to repair this?

— Still Bothered

Dear Bothered: From your account, "Hannah" was helpful in exuberantly partnering with you to plan this wedding quickly.

Must a maid of honor accompany the bride to shop for dresses? No.

If Hannah had a specific reason for wanting to skip this task, she should have told you (rather than dodging), but rather than demoting her, you could have simply told her that due to your own schedule, you were going to try to get another person to go dress shopping with you. So yes, you should have sucked it up.

No MOH who has already committed to the role will value being demoted.

You slighted her, and Hannah has overreacted.

Construction noises are too much for the pup

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I live in New York City in a co-op building. The apartment next door was sold eight months ago and has been unoccupied ever since.

I work from home doing some freelance writing, and I teach voice lessons via Zoom. I always have between two and eight voice students — of all ages.

I have wanted a canine companion for a very long time. Three weeks ago I brought home a puppy.

One week later, I was given notice the apartment next door would undergo a gut renovation that would last for at least three months.

Last week the renovation began and it's as loud and jarring as you might think.

I can't take work calls and I can't conduct voice lessons from my home. Worse, my puppy is very scared by the banging (who could blame her?) and she's trembling and anxious.

The big issue? I'm in a very tight financial position and I don't have the capacity to rent a pet-friendly shared workspace in the area. To my knowledge, I don't know of any pet-friendly voice studios.

I also don't have the financial means to send my puppy to daycare every day. My vet said they could recommend some anti-anxiety medications for her.

Am I totally out of luck here, or am I allowed to ask for compensation to vacate my home during construction hours, as well as money for meds/a thundershirt for my puppy?

— Broke Thirtysomething

Dear Broke: If you rent your apartment from the unit's owner, you should contact your landlord regarding any rent decrease or compensation while work is being done next door. If you are a co-op owner, you should contact your building's manager and the co-op board to inquire about any possible redress.

One obvious solution would be for you to move your virtual voice classes and other phone work to evenings and weekends, when the next-door apartment will be quiet.

You could try carrying your puppy in a dog sling as much as possible while inside, and spend a lot of time outside during these warm months.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): — This may be a good time to start a project you've been planning. Remain philosophical about minor misunderstandings or circumstances that test you. Anything that is in your best interests should run smoothly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): — If you make an effort to get along, you can go a long way. You may offer some extra acceptance and forgiveness to soothe someone's ruffled feathers. When you're always truthful, you need never fear exposure.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — You may begin to believe in angelic guidance — keep your eyes open for miracles this weekend. If you need assistance, just ask and help should arrive. Good advice may come from a book or from a close friend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — A few crossed signals could make you or a loved one uncomfortable for a few hours. You are probably wiser than usual where handling finances is concerned, so put a new business plan or investment into motion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — Make an effort to meet someone halfway. Achieve a compromise and the results should prove that a united front is unbeatable. This is an excellent time to make amends to someone if you have done harm in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — It is unlikely that your silence will be mistaken for ignorance or that your kindness will be seen as weakness. Sometimes helpful actions performed without saying a word are the ones that will be the most appreciated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — Focus on the future by having faith in facts, not fictions. A social blunder could end up being unimportant and forgettable. A partner could be filled with optimism about your joint plans and offer sound guidance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — A closed door might lead you to a better opportunity. Just because a loved one seems unpredictable doesn't mean that you are headed for a breakup. Look for an opening to improve your future and make better choices.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — Exercise your generosity and help someone in need. Your compassion may be contagious and can encourage other people to give to others. Your instincts could be right on target for making new friends out of business acquaintances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — It could be a great time to mend fences and make amends. If something has been nagging at your conscience, this is a good time to clear the air. You might find that offerings from the heart can bring unanticipated benefits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Believe in your partner and if needed, build up your confidence to firmly believe in yourself. Team up with someone who is willing to share an abundance of knowledge. Together, you can enjoy the rewards of a good life.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): — If you hit the jackpot, cash in your chips. Taking a calculated risk could pay off. You can sign agreements and contracts knowing that promises made will likely be promises kept. Believe that you deserve the best.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may be tempted to experiment with cutting-edge tech or invest time in making something unique. When you combine self-work with intention, vision and perseverance, you are set up for success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — When the sky is the limit, grow your wings. Your enthusiasm for anything new and different requires appropriate outlets. Embrace your dynamism but avoid making impulsive financial decisions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Maintain a low profile. Focus on research and investigation in the background. When change is in the air, you might be tempted to make impulsive alterations to your appearance or social agenda that backfire.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Prevent emotional issues from clouding your judgment by waiting until you've processed feelings before making a big move. Avoid negative consequences by not mixing business and pleasure or socializing while on the clock.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Shine your light. Dazzling ideas, innovative solutions, and a willingness to make positive changes might make you look like a hero to someone. Invite new friends into your intimate circle.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — If the Universe is calling your name, pay attention. Listen to other people and valuable knowledge can be gained. Wait for better timing to purchase something new or implement key financial strategies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — One who hesitates may be wiser than those who don't. Clarity might be difficult now – wait a few days to examine your feelings. You could be glad you waited because additional facts may emerge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — People-pleasing versus functional boundaries can be a delicate balance. Exercise restraint if a family member or partner seems difficult to please. Someone might help you get up to speed with new info.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Concentrate on being the best you can be. Disruptive people might briefly distract you from focusing on the big picture. You could wonder if it is time to change the way you tackle your work or a health issue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Even a one-track mind can change its direction. You may be impassioned about attaining material success, but you can change the way you achieve it. Make a point to calculate your budget with precision.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — With an attitude of learning, a negative result can teach you much more than a positive one. You can learn what really works by testing your ideas and analyzing the outcomes

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Put your ingenuity to the test. You can achieve anything if you put your mind to it. Focus on being a role model and leader in your workplace or when engaged in a project. Put social activities on the back burner.

• The Hanover Parks Department and the Jefferson County Soccer Association is teaming up to offer soccer at Hanover Park this fall for the second year in a row. Sign-ups for the JCSA-Hanover Fall League are currently underway. JCSA officials will be on-site at Hanover Park at 200 Spruce Lane today from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. The cost is $55 and all practices and games will take place at Hanover Park.

In 2021 which was the first year of this partnership, there were three divisions (U6, U8, U10) with three teams in each. The goal in 2022 is to increase participation numbers through lower roster sizes. This will allow each participate the opportunity to maximize practice and playing time and improve their foot-to-ball skills. Coaches are also needed.

Applications are also available at the Hanover Park Office located in the Community Center at Hanover Park. For more information about this soccer opportunity in Hanover, you can contact Brian Sachleben with JCSA at (502) 310-8484 and/or Scott Davidson with the Hanover Parks Department at (812) 806-1042.

Reds ship Naquin, Diehl to Mets for 2 minor leaguers

BY MIKE FITZPATRICK
AP BASEBALL WRITER

NEW YORK — With the trade deadline drawing closer, the first-place New York Mets have been busy getting better from the left side of the plate.

New York acquired left-handed-hitting outfielder Tyler Naquin and lefty reliever Phillip Diehl from the Cincinnati Reds on Thursday night in a deal for two teenage minor leaguers.

Cincinnati received outfielder Hector Rodríguez and right-hander Jose Acuña.

It was the second time in seven days the Mets traded for a left-handed hitter with some pop. New York upgraded at DH last week, acquiring Daniel Vogelbach from the Pittsburgh Pirates for rookie reliever Colin Holderman.

Naquin, a first-round draft pick 10 years ago, was batting .246 with seven homers and 33 RBIs in 56 games for the Reds, who are last in the NL Central. He homered and drove in two runs Thursday afternoon in a 7-6 loss to the Miami Marlins.

"Definitely wish him well in his career, and going to a first-place club — that's great for him," Reds vice president and general manager Nick Krall said.

Marte and Canha both bat right-handed. All-Star Jeff McNeil, a left-handed hitter, also plays left field occasionally when he's not at second base.

The Mets view the 31-year-old Naquin as a good all-around player who can start a couple of times a week against right-handed pitching. They developed interest in him last month and talks intensified when the clubs began exchanging names a few days ago.

"We had several teams that had interest in Tyler, but this was what we felt was the best deal for him and we felt it added two quality players to our pipeline," Krall said.

The Mets hold a three-game lead in the NL East over Atlanta heading into their series opener at Miami on Friday night.

Cincinnati also is expected to deal away All-Star righty Luis Castillo, perhaps the top starting pitcher on the trade market, and maybe others in the coming days.

"We have to build through our player pipeline," Krall said. "We need to make sure that we're continuously stocking that player pipeline.

"We're working right now to figure out how we can do the best we can to build us for long term and sustainable success."

Naquin has a $4,025,000 salary and is eligible for free agency after the season. His acquisition pushes New York's luxury tax payroll above $290 million, the new fourth tax level named after free-spending Mets owner Steve Cohen.

Naquin was drafted 15th overall by Cleveland in 2012 and made his major league debut in 2016, finishing third in AL Rookie of the Year voting after posting an .886 OPS in 116 games.

Beset by injuries throughout his career, he signed with Cincinnati as a free agent in February 2021 and batted .270 last year with career highs of 19 homers, 70 RBIs and 127 games.

He entered Thursday a .269 career hitter with a .774 OPS in 507 games over seven seasons with Cleveland and Cincinnati. He had an .805 career OPS against right-handers, including an .811 mark this year.

The 28-year-old Diehl has an 11.12 ERA in five big league games covering 5 innings this season. He earns the $700,000 minimum while in the majors.

Diehl, a Cincinnati native, has made 21 career major league appearances. He was 2-1 with a 4.24 ERA and 30 strikeouts over 23⅓ innings at Triple-A Louisville this year. He was a 27th-round draft pick by the New York Yankees in 2016.

To make room on the roster, New York designated right-hander R.J. Alvarez for assignment.

The 18-year-old Rodriguez hit .356 with three homers and 16 RBIs in 26 games in the rookie-level complex league in Florida. He also appeared in two games with Class A St. Lucie this month, going 1 for 7 with a walk.

He can play all three outfield spots as well as second base and third. The Reds see Rodríguez as a center fielder, and will send him to their rookie-level complex league in Arizona.

"He's a plus runner, has a chance to have a plus hit tool. We're really excited about him," Krall said.

The 19-year-old Acuña is 3-0 with a 2.67 ERA in eight minor league games this year, including five starts. He tossed three scoreless innings in his second start with St. Lucie on Tuesday, and is headed to Class A Daytona with the Reds.

"He's pitched well, just got promoted to low A," Krall said. "Has a chance to be a major league starting pitcher, frankly, with three plus major league pitches."

Neither one was ranked among the Mets' top 30 prospects by MLB Pipeline.

"We had conversations about some upper-level guys as well, but taking the upside with both these players, first with Hector Rodríguez, having a chance to be a center fielder, have a chance to have a quality hit tool that can run — you just don't get those players at the upper levels. They become premium prospects for teams to trade," Krall said.

"Acuna's the same way. He added 3 mph to his fastball from last year to this year. And you can see him developing and growing. He's just 19 years old, and he's got a chance to be a legitimate major league starting pitcher. Those are harder to get as you climb up the levels and maybe you would have got one of those instead of both, but we felt it was the right thing for us in this organization to take a shot on two guys at the lower levels."

Burrow to miss part of Bengals' camp after appendectomy

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Joe Burrow has had a successful appendectomy, but there is no timetable for his return to the field, coach Zac Taylor said Wednesday.

Taylor said he didn't expect the star quarterback to fall behind in practice. Burrow had surgery Tuesday and Taylor expected Burrow to be released from the hospital Wednesday, which happened to be the first official day of workouts for the Bengals.

"The good news is he has two years in (the system)," Taylor said. "He knows it. He still has his iPad. He won't be behind the eight ball."

Backups Brandon Allen and Jake Browning will take the snaps until Burrow's return, likely in a couple of weeks.

The Bengals are coming off their first AFC championship and Super Bowl appearance in 33 seasons. Burrow completed 70.4% of his passes last season for 4,611 yards and 34 touchdowns.

On Monday, Bengals owner Mike Brown acknowledged the team was already restructuring finances so they can meet Burrow's salary demands in the next contract. He is eligible to negotiate after this season.

NOTES: Taylor said G Alex Cappa and HB Samaje Perine were removed from the physically unable to perform list and will be eased back into action.

No decision in Watson case this week

BY ROB MAADDI
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

The wait for a decision on potential discipline for Cleveland Browns quarterback Deshaun Watson following accusations of sexual misconduct will continue into another week.

Two people with knowledge of the situation told The Associated Press that retired judge Sue L. Robinson is not issuing a ruling Friday on Watson's disciplinary hearing that concluded a month ago. They spoke to the AP on condition of anonymity because the discussions are private.

Watson was accused of sexual harassment and assault by 24 massage therapists and has settled 20 of the civil lawsuits. Two separate Texas grand juries declined to indict Watson on criminal complaints stemming from the allegations.

Watson, who played for four seasons with Houston before being traded to Cleveland in March, has been practicing with the Browns while Robinson has spent weeks trying to determine whether the three-time Pro Bowl quarterback violated the NFL's personal conduct policy and whether to impose discipline.

The league argued for an indefinite suspension of at least one year during a three-day hearing in Delaware last month. The NFL Players' Association pushed for no punishment, though a person familiar with Watson's defense told the AP in June that a suspension is expected and the goal is to have Watson play this season.

Both sides submitted post-hearing briefs by July 12 and hoped for a decision before training camp opened this week. Robinson is carefully considering the case and isn't held to a deadline.

If Robinson, who was jointly appointed by the league and the players' union, imposes any punishment, either side can appeal. In that case, NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell or his designee "will issue a written decision that will constitute full, final and complete disposition of the dispute," per terms of Article 46 in the collective bargaining agreement.

Jacoby Brissett would replace Watson as Cleveland's starter during a suspension.

"With Deshaun, I know there is that uncertainty, like we talked about (Wednesday), but we can only control what we can control," Browns coach Kevin Stefanski said Thursday. "I think that is what he has done a very nice job of. So much of that in football is there is a lot of volume to what we are doing right now when it comes to football, so there are a lot of meetings, there is a lot of install and there is a lot of workout, walkthrough and practice. He has really thrown himself into that."

Chiefs sign veteran DE Dunlap to 1-year contract

BY DAVE SKRETTA
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The Chiefs signed defensive end Carlos Dunlap to a one-year deal worth up to $8 million on Thursday, giving them an experienced pass rusher opposite Frank Clark and first-round pick George Karlaftis another veteran presence.

The 33-year-old Dunlap was released in March by the Seahawks, who acquired him in a trade with Cincinnati in 2020 and had signed him to a two-year deal. Dunlap rotated with other defensive ends in Seattle, much like he's expected to do with the Chiefs, and had 8 ½ sacks along with eight tackles for loss while playing 38% of snaps last season.

"I don't know if there's pen to paper. I know I talked to that particular player yesterday," Chiefs defensive coordinator Steve Spagnuolo said after the second full-squad workout of training camp at Missouri Western State University.
